RTHPLACE OF THE AMERICAN NAVY

HISTORY

The Continental Schooner HANNAH, considered the first armed naval vessel in this Country's history, was leased to the United Colonies August 1, 1775 by Her owner, Colonel John Glover, a merchant of Beverly, and Commanding Officer of the 21st Regiment of Massachusetts Militia. Converted for naval service at Glover's wharf, in Beverly, the HANNAH sailed on September 5, 1775. Two days out of port She recaptured the brig UNITY, an American vessel seized only a short time before by the British. She became the object of a search by the Royal Navy which attempted to curtail Her preying on British supply vessels and transports in Massachusetts Bay. On October 10th, She engaged H. M. S. NAUTILIS, a sixteen-gun British Sloop, in Mackerel Cove just off Beverly. The outcome of this first naval battle of the Revolution was indecisive, but the HANNAH survived.

Retirement from Continental service on October 21, 1775, the HANNAH was the first of the eight vessels in General Washington's initial fleet - six of which were outfitted and sailed from Beverly, America's first naval base.
